CRASH: Player facing charges

In February 2000, Hitmen defenceman Stephen Peat was stabbed in the lower abdomen at Outlaws Nightclub as he tried to stop an altercation between another player and a group of strangers.

Kisio, however, said alcohol isn't a major problem in junior hockey.

"These are all young guys trying to be professional hockey players and look after themselves very well," he said.

Saturday's crash happened after the vehicle being driven by the hockey player rolled on Springbank Road, just east of Highway 22.

Regina resident Emily Matthewson died at the scene.

The teenager, who wasn't injured, is an up-and-coming player who's expected to be featured prominently in this year's NHL draft.
